The Baptismal Covenant

Beloved, by virtue of your own covenant with God, you now present your offspring in this public manner of baptism.

In that covenant you have given up everything you call your own to be used in the manner which best accords with its nature for the Divine Glory. This consecration, in your own case, has been expressed by the ordinance of baptism. You now seek the same sacred seal for your children, not as a means of purification, but as an exponent of your faith, and a recognition of their need of the cleansing efficacy of the blood of Christ, and of the renewing and sanctifying influences of the Holy Ghost.

In order that that which is typically represented by the washing of baptism, may be effected in the personal experience of your children, you must teach them the Word of God, instruct them in the principles of our holy religion, be careful to set them a godly example, pray for them, teach them to pray, and endeavor by a faithful use of all the God appointed means to bring your children up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

Humbly relying upon the Divine assistance, do you solemnly promise thus to train your children for God, for His Church and for heaven?

The Church

Presbyterians believe that the universal visible Church consists of all those persons in every nation, together with their children, who profess the religion of Christ and submission to His laws.

They believe that a particular Church consists of a number of professing Christians with their children, associated for divine worship and godly living, according to the Holy Scriptures, and submitting to a certain form of government.

They believe that form of Church government which is called Presbyterianism, is most agreeable to the teaching of the Word of God, which is the only foundation of their faith and government. (Acts 14:23.)

The principles of Presbyterian church government are:

The supreme headship of Jesus Christ; the official equality of its members; the office of ruling elders, as representatives of the people; the election of the officers of particular churches by church members; and the authority of its several courts; that the government and discipline in each particular church be conducted by a bench of elders or presbyters and not by all the communicants, and that all the churches be bound together under the authority of presbyteries and other courts of review and control.

Church Officers

Presbyterians believe the ordinary and perpetual officers in the Church are:

First, Pastors or Bishops. These names are applied to the same person in Scripture. The pastoral office is the first in the church, both for dignity and usefulness. His Scripture names indicate his position, duties and responsibilities. He is in Scripture designated as bishop, pastor, minister, presbyter, or elder, angel of the church, ambassador, and steward of the mysteries of God.

Second, Ruling Elders. Ruling Elders are representatives of the people, chosen by them for the purpose of exercising government or discipline in conjunction with pastors or ministers. They not only have authority to receive members, but are to observe the deportment of church members, to admonish those who are disorderly, and to aid the pastor in all things pertaining to the oversight of the flock. In case of vacancy in the pastoral office, they act under and with the advice of presbytery.

Third, Deacons. The Scriptures clearly point out deacons as distinct officers in the church, whose business is to take care of the poor. To them also may be properly committed the management of the temporal affairs of the church. (See Form of Gov., Chaps. v., vi. and ix.)

Church Courts

There are four courts in the Presbyterian Church: Session, Presbytery, Synod and General Assembly.

I. The Church Session is composed of the pastor (when there is one) and the ruling elders of any particular congregation, met together as a church court. It is charged with maintaining the spiritual government of the congregation, and appoints delegates to the higher courts of the church.

II. The next court is the Presbytery. It consists of all the ministers and one ruling elder from each congregation within a certain district. It reviews the action of church sessions, and is a court of appeal from church sessions. It is a bond of visible union between the churches, affords opportunity for mutual consultation, and has authority to order whatever pertains to the spiritual welfare of the churches under its care. It meets twice a year, and may hold called meetings when necessary.

III. The third court is the Synod. It is in a sense a larger Presbytery, and has power to review the proceedings and correct the errors of the presbyteries under its care.

It is composed, like the Presbytery, of all the ministers and one ruling elder from each congregation within its bounds. It meets once a year, and oftener when necessary.

IV. The next court is the General Assembly. It is the greatest and highest court of the church, and by delegates of ministers and elders from all the presbyteries—or from the synods, as the case may be—it represents in one body or court all the particular congregations under its jurisdiction. It has power to review the action and redress the errors of all the lower courts. It meets but once a year.

Helps to Self-Examination

First. I am to keep clearly in my mind that the end proposed by this scrutiny is not to determine whether God "is faithful and just to forgive sins and cleanse from all unrighteousness," but rather whether I, as a penitent sinner, am, at this moment, in Christ Jesus, and hence am "accepted in the Beloved."

Second. I must make a conscience of discharging this duty:

I. Because God commands it. (1 Cor. xi: 28.) Read this, remembering that "unworthy" is an adverb, and can never affect me, a person—I shall always be "unworthy" of the great privilege of showing forth Christ's death and anticipating His coming in glory, but I need not dishonor Him by celebrating His feast in an unbecoming manner as did these Corinthians who turned the sacred feast into a drunken riot. (See also 2 Cor. xiii: 5.)

II. Because I need it, self deception being possible and fatal. (Gal. vi: 3, 6.)

III. Because my spiritual comfort and usefulness are conditioned by this self-knowledge. (2 Tim. i: 12.)

Third. I must be honest in this search, otherwise I lose my labor and confirm my mistakes.

I. I must know the very worst about myself. I must know

(1.) Whether my habitual posture before God is enduring as seeing Him who is invisible, or whether, although a professing Christian, I live practically without God in all my thoughts.

(2.) Whether I make the Law of God the rule of my life, daily and devoutly searching the Scriptures to know God's will, or whether I hurriedly read a chapter when it suits my convenience, or when my conscience suggests that I ought.

(3.) Is daily prayer, in the closet and in the family, my custom, and do I in my approaches to the throne of Grace hold real communion with the Father of Spirit or do I render a formal, heartless and perfunctory service?

(4.) Am I striving to adorn the doctrine of God, my Saviour, in the fellowship of Christ, or are my engagements with the church of the living God regarded as matters of secondary importance? More particularly

(a.) Do I realize, since all things are to be done heartily as unto God and not unto man that, unless providentially hindered, it is just as much my duty to hear as it is my Pastor's duty to preach? We serve the same God.

(b.) Do I recognize the fact that my church responsibilities are where my church vows were assumed? I have covenanted with the First Church. Have I kept my contract with the Church of God?

(c.) Am I endeavoring so to live among men that they are constrained to glorify God by reason of my Christian work and conversation?

(d.) Am I, as a Christian, doing anything in obedience to my Master's command, "go work to-day in my vineyard," or am I sitting with folded hands, in the enjoyment of an inglorious ease while a few loving hearts and willing hands are overburdened? Is the Church of Christ any stronger from the fact that my name is enrolled among the list of members?

II. I must know also the very best about myself. I want the truth in the case and Christian humility does not beget falsehood. If I am consciously growing in grace, if I have more of the Spirit of Christ and am walking with increasing delight in His footsteps, I am not required to deny the blessed truth, but should derive hallowed comfort from the assurance that He who hath begun this good work in me will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ. (Phil. 1: 6.)

III. Having determined the status of my soul before God, I must be very careful not to rest on my examination or its results, but on Christ alone. Recognizing my proneness to put duties in the place of my Saviour, I must guard against all legal self-justification. I must not pardon my sins by forgetting them and fall into the mistake of supposing that God has forgotten them because I have: I must guard against the temptation to make future obedience atone for past offences, but must ever remember that when I have done all I can, I am still "an unprofitable servant" saved by grace alone.

Fourth. I must examine myself statedly and frequently. If I am wandering from Christ, I must know of my declension in order to return. If I am abiding in Christ, I need the joy arising from that blessed assurance; hence, my uniform posture before God should be: "Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me and know my thoughts, and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting." (Ps. 139: 23, 24.)

Fifth. When my heart condemns me, as condemn me it will, I must remember that God is greater than my heart and knows desires and purposes as well as deeds and performances; I must return unto Him who has promised never to cast out the penitent soul, and must return resting upon the blessed assurance that "the blood of Jesus Christ, God's Son, cleanseth from all sin," and relying upon the Master's own loving promise, "My grace is sufficient for thee."
